Support for digitisation should enable the community media sector to become more visible on European level and facilitate exchange of programmes, ideas, formats and participators.

Community media could, when supported by the new MEDIA programme, contribute to new programming formats, new ways in activating audiences to participate in media projects and offer the audiovisual industry new models for social relevant programming models.

6.3- Which other instruments to facilitate and encourage the commercial funding of audiovisual projects would you consider effective with regard to the competitiveness of the European audiovisual sector? Who should benefit?

Other remarks with regard to the possible action line "Access to Finance"?

'Social and cultural benefits' should also be considered as value for the development of a European audiovisual sector. So not only commercial entities should profit from the new budget line, but also non-commercial, social benefit media sector, as community media.

Within thousands of community media all around Europe and hundred of thousands of civil society practitioners, volunteers and professionals, community media provide media literacy skills to their participants (by training them and providing them with access to media) and their audiences (by stimulating interaction and by providing programmes with social and cultural relevance). Support for this sector also benefits the 'commercial' sector by exploring new formats, educating citizens. An example is the yearly organized 'International Festival of Local Televisions' in Košice, Slovakia (see also <http://www.festival.sk/2010/>)

9- Comments

Your general comments with regard to the design of e new MEDIA programme possible fields of discussion (inter alia)

- What fields of action are totally missing so far?
- What do you think are risks and opportunities for the European audiovisual sector?
- What new business models for audiovisual media should be supported by MEDIA and how?
- To what extent should new technologies be taken into account by a new MEDIA programme (3D, cross-media and transmedia projects, games, mobile TV)
- Should support for the TV sector be strengthened? How?
- How can the MEDIA programme help improve film/media literacy. Do you think media literacy is a tool to build up an audience for European works?
- Should support for promotion and distribution of audiovisual works start at an earlier stage (e.g. promotion measures during the development phase) and include producers as beneficiaries?

- How could the MEDIA programme be more supportive for strengthening the audiovisual sector of Members of the programme with low production capacity?

- Should the scope of the MEDIA programme be wider and include European neighbouring countries like the Western Balkan countries?

- How do you think we can increase audiences for European films?

- What fields of action are totally missing so far? The field of 'social benefit' media, e.g. community media, is, until now, totally missed in the MEDIA programme. Including citizens in media production is an absolute necessity in strengthening media literacy and shaping a media future for the European citizens. So the scope of the MEDIA programme should be wider than only 'commercial' media services to get a more vivid European media landscape in which citizens are not only passive 'audiences' but also active users of media tools. This helps to create understanding for different cultural identities, strengthens participation in democratic processes and counterweights the dominance of economic, profit-driven mass media. - What do you think are risks and opportunities for the European audiovisual sector? The risk is to keep the focus on one-way commercial media and forget that 'passive media consumers' are also 'active citizens' with specific communication needs for access to and participation in media; - What new business models for audiovisual media should be supported by MEDIA and how? We strongly suggest also supporting non-commercial business models by reserving at least 10% of the Media programme for this sector. - To what extent should new technologies be taken into account by a new MEDIA programme (3D, cross-media and transmedia projects, games, mobile TV) We prefer cross- and transmedia projects as important way to strengthen interaction between different media types. - Should support for the TV sector be strengthened? How? We strongly suggest supporting non-commercial (local) community television initiatives as this can activate European citizens to participate in television production; it gives voice to cultural minorities, helps closing gaps between cultures and strengthen democratic processes. - How can the MEDIA programme help improve film/media literacy. Do you think media literacy is a tool to build up an audience for European works? Media literacy is not only about 'consuming' media, but also about 'producing' media, as literacy is not only about 'reading', but also 'writing' . So the focus should not only be 'passive' audiences, but also active participating citizens. - Should support for promotion and distribution of audiovisual works start at an earlier stage (e.g. promotion measures during the development phase) and include producers as beneficiaries? no comment - How could the MEDIA programme be more supportive for strengthening the audiovisual sector of Members of the programme with low production capacity? Part of the Media programme budget should be reserved for non-commercial small scale media projects with specific social and cultural benefits in stead of focusing solely (as until now) on economical benefits. - Should the scope of the MEDIA programme be wider and include European neighbouring countries like the Western Balkan countries? Yes - How do you think we can increase audiences for European films? No comments
